One Halfpenny.

LIVED IN FIVE REIGNS.

The Dowager Duchess of Abercorn, who has lived in five reigns, and has 210 descendants living, is lying seriously ill at Coates Castle, Sussex.

YOUTHFUL HEROINE.

Though only twelve years old, Lily Spell rescued a boy who had fallen from a break-water into the sea at Southend.

"MR. WHITE-HEATHER."

This lady, the breeder and owner of Detail, one of the horses entered for the Grand National Steeplechase, is well-known on the Turf as "Mr. White-Heather." The smaller photograph shows the horse Detail.

FISHERMEN GOLFERS, WHO WILL PLAY THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.

The team of Invervallochy fishermen-golfers, who will play a parliamentary team at Sandwich to-morrow, came to London on Wednesday. Here they are seen paying a visit to St. Paul's Cathedral.

Not one of the fishermen had ever been in London before, and they paid a round of visits to the most prominent buildings. This snapshot shows them in Trafalgar-square.

The fishermen's team of golfers is composed of ten players with two reserves, and Mr. Balfour will be among the members of Parliament who will oppose them. They came to London as the guests of Mr. Maconochie, M.P., and this photograph was taken yesterday at the entrance to their hotel.

The golfers leaving the National Gallery, where they were amazed by their first view of great pictures.—(See page 4.)

KAISER'S MOVE AGAINST FRANCE.

Hailed as the Saviour of Moorish Independence.

SPAIN EXCITED.

Belief That the Visit Will Have Serious Results.

The one topic of the day is still the visit of the Kaiser to Morocco.

Its significance as a blow at France and French influence at the Moroccan Court becomes more apparent daily, and already the German Emperor is being proclaimed as the saviour of Morocco from complete domination by the French.

The feeling in Tangier, according to a Reuter message, is one of extraordinary excitement and expectation.

"The natives," states the "Echo de Paris" Tangier correspondent, "manifest intense joy, and say that the Emperor William is coming to prevent France from seizing Morocco.

"The foreign population is much excited, and the Spaniards in particular wish to profit by the occasion to create anti-French demonstrations.

"The leaders of the Spanish movement have pasted on the walls of their houses a placard calling upon Spaniards to give a worthy reception to the Monarch, who is coming to this country to remind others that the treaties guarantee the integrity of Morocco, and adding that in this country by the side of the native element there ought to be no dominant element except that of Spain.

A SUPPRESSED PLACARD.

"The placard concludes with the words, 'Let your sentiments, your aspirations, and your hopes be expressed in this cry: Long live Spain! Long live William II. Long live the independence of Morocco!'

"The Spanish Minister has had this placard taken down. The French remain calm, but they are depressed by their isolation. Only the German colours are seen in the town. The Emperor William's visit will have an immense effect throughout the country, and this will make the situation of our Minister at Fez more and more difficult if not impossible.

The "Figaro" remarks that a year ago Count von Buelow declared that he was satisfied with the attitude of France. What then was the new factor that has since changed the aspect of the question?

"It is evident," states the "République Française," "that the attitude of the Powers which are neighbours to Morocco, to which Italy must certainly be added, remains unshaken. As for the discordant echoes that reach us from Berlin, it is for the German Government to lead the way or to give them, if it chooses, diplomatic form."

Meanwhile the uncle of the Sultan is pushing forward elaborate arrangements for the Kaiser's reception.

Raisuli, who is going to Tangier to meet Emperor William, has received a guarantee from the authorities that no action will be taken against him during his stay.

The present time is also selected by the Spaniards to push forward the formation of a "Hispano-Moroccan Commercial Centre."

The Kaiser took leave of the King and Queen of Portugal at Lisbon yesterday, and, after a cordial farewell, embarked on the Hamburg, which started at once for Tangier.

KAISER'S VISIT TO "GIB."

Will His Majesty and Staff be Granted Facilities for Photography, &c.?

Should the Kaiser be given facilities to visit a British fortress?

This very interesting question was raised in the House of Commons yesterday by Sir George Bartley, who invited the Minister for War to state whether, during the proposed visit of the German Emperor and his staff to Gibraltar, only those parts of the fortress would be shown which are open to British subjects, and whether the same rules as to photographing the fortress or any parts of it would be upheld which were rigidly enforced on British subjects.

Mr. Arnold-Forster replied that, subject to the regulations, the responsibility rested with the general officer commanding, whose discretion it was not proposed to interfere with.

"Am I to understand," said Sir George, in tones of rising indignation, "that facilities will be given to the Emperor of a country which is harrying a fleet which may be used against us, which are not given to loyal subjects of the Crown?"

"I have nothing to add to the answer I have given," was the curt rejoinder.

TRAIN WRECK.

Three Killed and Nine Injured by Engine's Terrible Leap.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, Thursday.—A terrible railway accident, which resulted in three deaths and serious injuries to nine others, occurred this morning between Arcueil-Cachan and Bourg La Reine, a few miles from Paris.

A passenger train was approaching a tunnel when the engine suddenly left the metals and bounded on to the up line, dragging the entire train in a confused heap across the opposite track.

Many passengers were imprisoned in the overturned carriages, and, to add to the horror of the situation, fire broke out and spread along the carriages, amid the appalling cries of the helpless travellers.

Ready help was at hand, and many persons were rescued, but the driver and stoker, along with a commercial traveller, were found burned to death beneath the locomotive, while nine others who were injured had to be carried away on an ambulance. Three of them are now in hospital.

DANGEROUS DIVERSION.

Waiter Blown Up During a Half-Hour
Devoted to Study of Explosives.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, Thursday.—"I am a waiter and I hate doing nothing in my spare time." So said René Hilariou Didaret, admitted into Saint Louis Hospital yesterday suffering from severe wounds.

"Yesterday, therefore," he continued, "I was amusing myself in my room by mixing picric acid and chlorate of potash in a mortar.

"Suddenly I saw a blinding light. Then awful darkness. I jumped down the staircase, rushed into the courtyard, and put my head under the pump to soothe the awful agony."

A search in Didaret's room at the Hotel Yvancanson revealed a quantity of anarchistic literature.

NAVAL ENTENTE CORDIALE.

British and French Fleets to Exchange Visits
This Summer.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, Thursday.—The British and French Governments are considering a plan for an international naval demonstration in connection with the entente cordiale.

In the first fortnight of July, says the French Minister of Marine, it is proposed that the British Fleet shall visit Brest, the French Northern Squadron returning the visit in the second fortnight in August.

The fetes will be similar, says the "Petit Journal," to those organised at Toulon in 1893, on the occasion of the visit of the Russian squadron.

It is stated that the English Government initiated the plan. France gave a ready welcome to the friendly advances of England.

It is not known whether President Loubet will review the British squadron. It is believed that a member of the Royal Family and a British Admiral might proceed by special train to Paris and be received there by M. Loubet.

GOOD NEWS FOR G.P.O. STAFF.

Sorters, Postmen, and Telegraphists To Have Increased Wages.

From to-morrow a general increase in wages will be given to Post Office employees.

The long official list of improvements includes the following:—

All male sorting clerks and telegraphists of the age of twenty-five and over will have an increase of 3s. a week in London and 2s. 6d. in the provinces.

The starting pay for female sorters will be 14s. instead of 12s.

Postmen of the senior class will have a minimum of 48s. instead of 36s. as heretofore.

MIDNIGHT TELEGRAMS.

Mr. and Mrs. Chamberlain arrived in London last night from Folkestone much benefited by their stay.

It is reported from Nagasaki that the two British contraband runners, Scotsman and Wyfield, will be released.

Several non-unionists went to work at the boot factories of Raunds yesterday under police escort. There were hostile crowds.

Lady Mabel Murray, sister of the Earl of Mansfield, was married yesterday to Captain Herbert G. King Hall, D.S.O., at the Cathedral of the Holy Trinity, Gibraltar.

KING AT THE RACES.

His Majesty Enjoys Bright Sunshine and a Loyal Welcome at Aintree.

His Majesty was splendidly welcomed at Aintree yesterday. Brilliant sunshine and a blue sky ensured his personal comfort, while thousands of loyal racegoers cheered him most heartily.

Driving in procession with Lord and Lady Derby and the Knowsley house-party, the King arrived on the course early and saw the best of the racing.

As might have been expected, after his late severe cold, his Majesty kept within the shelter of the royal box, and retained his overcoat. Although he did not smoke while watching the racing, he lacked nothing of his usual good spirits, and took a keen interest in the day's sport.

The King left the course shortly before four o'clock after watching the Thurstby Handicap, warmly acknowledging the plaudits of the onlookers as he left for Knowsley.

Full reports of the racing will be found on page 14.

QUEEN'S DELIGHT WITH "GIB."

Again yesterday the Queen and her party, mounted on donkeys, visited places of interest at Gibraltar, including Windmill Hill and the Upper Signal Station.

Early to-day her Majesty leaves for Naples, calling at Genoa. It is authoritatively stated that the royal visitors have greatly appreciated Gibraltar's loyal welcome, and the Queen has enjoyed her visit immensely.

The Duke and Duchess of Connaught and their party arrived in Rome at two o'clock yesterday afternoon. Prince Gustavus Adolphus is also in the city.

OUR HOME DEFENCES.

Lord Lansdowne Says That the Colossal
Expenditure Must Be Arrested.

In the House of Lords, yesterday, the Earl of Donoughmore moved the second reading of the Service of Militiamen Bill, which provides that any part of the regular Militia when embodied shall be liable to serve in any place out of the United Kingdom.

The Earl of Wemyss moved the rejection of the Bill, remarking that the proposal was a revolution, and meant the breaking up of the foundation upon which our military system rested.

The Marquis of Lansdowne said the great awakening in regard to home defence was due to the more attentive study of these subjects by the Defence Committee, and also to the financial exigencies of the case.

The constant growth of our naval and military expenditure was becoming a serious menace to the financial stability of this country, and they had had to consider seriously in what direction it was possible to arrest the progress of that colossal expenditure.

He thought their lordships would all agree that the pruning knife should not be applied to our naval expenditure.

The Second Reading was carried by 69 votes to 21.

DIARY OF AN M.P.

Far-Reaching Declaration Expected from Mr.
Chamberlain—Coming Home Rule Debate.

HOUSE OF COMMONS LIBRARY, Thursday Night.—Mr. Chamberlain returned to town this evening, but is not expected to be in his place very much before the Easter recess.

Steps are on foot to entertain the right hon. gentleman at one of the periodical dinners of the tariff reform members of the House, when a declaration of very far-reaching importance on party policy may confidently be anticipated.

The debate on the third reading of the Consolidated Fund Bill provided the occasion for raising a number of matters by the Opposition, none of them of very first-class importance.

THE TRANSVAAL LOAN.

Once again Mr. Lyttelton had to answer criticism in regard to the non-issue up to date of the Transvaal Loan, and once again he made it perfectly clear that the markets were favourable enough, the guarantors of the loan were perfectly ready and willing to discharge their obligations, but that the Government in their discretion thought it wise to delay the issue of the loan until such times as representative Government had been established in South Africa.

Without a doubt the motion of which Mr. Tuff, the tariff reform member for Rochester has given notice, on the subject of Home Rule, is likely to greatly disturb the happy unity which at present prevails among members of the Opposition.

It has transpired that under the direction of the Government Mr. Liphi the whole rank and file of the Conservative Party have for weeks been balloting for a similar motion, but that hard luck has hitherto attended their efforts.

VLADIVOSTOK SIEGE BEGINS.

Japanese Will Bombard the Port with Captured Siege Guns.

RAILWAYS CUT.

The chief interest in the war news to hand is the report that the Japanese have cut the railway line in several places.

By destroying the line to Monni River Bridge they have, it is said, prevented General Linievitch from receiving any further reinforcements.

The line between Harbin and Vladivostok has also been cut, and preparations for the active siege of Vladivostok are being perfected.

For this purpose the Russian siege-guns taken at Port Arthur have been sent on.

In all probability the next great event of the war will be the siege of Vladivostok.

Another report, which lacks confirmation, declares that the Russians have been forced to abandon their position at Guntzling, after a sharp engagement.

It is also stated that Japanese warships are now cruising near Possiet Bay.

Harbin has received Japanese proclamations intimating that the Japanese army intends to occupy the town about the middle of April.

BELICCOSE TSAR.

Opposes Peace in Spite of the Counsel of His Ablest Statesmen.

PARIS, Thursday.—According to a high personage interviewed by the representative of the "Figaro" at St. Petersburg, the Tsar has every day since Friday last summoned to Tsarskoe Selo those best fitted to give an opinion in order to discuss with them the question of peace in all its bearings.

M. Witte, it is stated, pronounced in favour of peace in order not to compromise still further the financial situation.

Count Lansdorff also recommended peace from the point of diplomacy in order to avoid European complications.

Two of the members of the Finance Committee only were in favour of the continuation of the war, but the Tsar sided with them. The Committee composed of the Grand Dukes and generals was also in favour of the continuation of hostilities. Reuter.

OCEAN RECORD.

Rojestvensky's Flying Squadron Reported
Sunda Strait.

PARIS, Thursday.—According to the "Echo de Paris," it is rumoured in St. Petersburg that Admiral Rojestvensky's fleet has arrived in the Sunda Strait.

This, however, says the correspondent, appears to be impossible since the fleet only left Madagascar about the 14th inst.

GENERAL TSENG'S SEDAN.

Why the Russians Kidnapped the Governor of Manchuria.

VICTORIA (B.C.), Thursday.—Mail advices received by the C.P.R. steamer Empress of Japan state that the Russians kidnapped General Tseng, the Governor of Manchuria, when Mukden was evacuated, the Cossacks carrying him off in a sedan chair.

Tseng resisted strongly, and said he was anxious to commit suicide, as the Imperial authorities in Peking had not given him permission to leave his post.

The object of the Russians in kidnapping the Governor was their wish to use his seals to inform the Chinese to supply them with provisions during their retreat.

The Governor was subsequently released, but his seals were stolen.—Laffan.

150 - MILLIONS OFFERED.

Japanese Loan Subscribed Ten Times Over—7½ Millions in Cheques.

The Japanese loan has been subscribed ten times over. At noon yesterday it was ascertained that with the London applications alone, the loan had been exceeded nine times.

No less a sum than 150 millions sterling has been applied for, the cheques and money handed in with the applications alone representing seven and a half millions. The banks hope to be able to post the allotment letters simultaneously on Monday next.

PAWKY GOLFERS' TOUR OF LONDON.

Mint, as the Source of "Bawbees," Chiefly Impressed Them.

CITY MEN AS "SEAGULLS."

"What a toon is London! It's neither beginning nor end. It's a' hooses!" So exclaimed yesterday one of the Inverlochy fishermen who are to meet at golf a House of Commons team headed by the Prime Minister at Sandwich tomorrow.

They drove off from the Waverley Hotel, Southampton-row, and made an enjoyable "round" of the City.

With their tight-fitting blue caps, bronzed faces, and glittering eyes, they looked typical tourists of the deep.

On being photographed by the Daily Mirror at the start, "Joe," the spokesman of the team, who wore a blue tie as a compliment to the Prime Minister, remarked to his Aberdonian mates, "Ye'll get yer picture in the mornin' for a bawbee."

He Had Heard About London,

One of the fishermen remarked expectantly, "I have often heard about London." As with the rest, this is his first visit.

Another could hardly believe that the population was greater than that of the whole of Scotland, but observed "it must be an awfu' squeeze for elbow room."

The traffic impressed them most. The fishermen agreed that it would be safer to fall into the "Roost"—a current near Shetland—than into the maelstrom of omnibuses and cabs.

"Ye'd be a dead man afore ye could cry 'help.' The sea 'ud gie ye a better chance than that, and the sea dinna waste much mercie," said one.

But he thought London might be a fine place to live in with "plenty siller," but "gie me Scotland to dee in," he added.

In Cheapside the men were surprised to learn that the population of the City during the day was about a million, and little more than 40,000 at night.

"The folk gang back to their nests like the seagulls when their day's work is done," said one fellow.

St. Paul's as a Bunker.

The dome of St. Paul's elicited one of the few remarks to golf. "It woud take a fine masher to clear it," said the man who is drawn against Balfour.

Billingsgate was hailed with peculiar relish as headquarters of fisherfolk. "I remember the Great Fire of London," said one of the youngest, looking up at the Monument.

"Ye must be older than ye look," pawkily remarked a companion. The young fisherman was thinking of the Cripplegate fire eight years ago.

They rose like one man to look at the Mint, lying upon the driver to halt, while they surveyed the national money factory with emotion.

After a space of reverent salutation, "Joe" inquired whether "bawbees" as well as sovereigns, were made there. Learning that they were, he nodded contentedly, and proceeded to charge his pipe with pungent "bogey roll," the fishermen's favourite brand of tobacco.

On the return journey the seafaring golfers walked reverently through St. Paul's—the most awe-inspired visitors in the sanctuary.

"That's the bravest House o' God I ever beheld," was a characteristic comment.

No Reverence for "Paintin's."

Eloquently laconic was the skipper's criticism of the National Gallery: "Them's paintin's." The men visited the House of Commons in the afternoon and the Empire in the evening.

To-day they are practising at Sandwich. Their only regret is that to-morrow's match is on the four-ball basis. They never play foursomes, except as four-ball games. They grudge the time lost.

SPECTRAL ACTORS.

Duke of Fife's Recollection of a Drama in the Fog.

In the Haymarket Theatre yesterday afternoon the Duke of Fife, residing at a Coal Smoke Abatement Society's meeting, told of a former visit to that theatre during a dense fog.

Seated in a box at the back of the stalls, said his Grace, the performers appeared like living shadows, though their voices were familiar. Now the recollection came vividly back to his memory. There was no reason for the extraordinary white fog of the British Isles should be black and poisonous, and the object of the society was to prevent this.

VENERABLE DUCHESS ILL.

The Dowager Duchess of Abercorn is lying seriously ill at Coates Castle.

She is in her ninety-third year, and has lived in five reigns. Her living direct descendants number 210.

MASK MYSTERY.

Old Lady Victim of Deptford Assassins Not Expected To Live.

The inquest into the circumstances surrounding the death of the old man, Thomas Farrow, murdered by masked robbers in a shop at High-street, Deptford, last Monday, was opened yesterday in the Congregational Hall, Deptford.

During the proceedings a sensation was caused by the coroner, Mr. Oswald, making the announcement that Mrs. Farrow had just died.

This proved to be an error, owing to the misreading of a telegram.

During the afternoon, however, Mrs. Farrow took a turn for the worse, and as pneumonia has set in it is not expected that she will live.

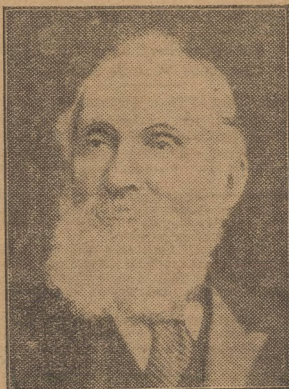

Mr. George Chapman, the proprietor of the shop, said he had known deceased for thirty years. He usually opened the shop at half-past seven in the morning, but sometimes painters and others going to their work might call at even an earlier hour and purchase material.

On the Friday preceding the outrage Farrow would have paid cash for a consignment of goods delivered. Consequently only a small amount of cash, from £11 to £14, would have been in his possession on Monday morning.

It was specially desired by the coroner that the following particulars of Mrs. Farrow might be circulated, in order that any relatives living might come forward. Her maiden name was Anne Collop, and, according to the marriage certificate, the couple were married on December 23, 1860, at Holy Trinity Church, Kentish Town. She formerly lived at Hitley-road, Barnsbury, and her father was an ostler.

The inquest was eventually adjourned until April 19.

LORD KELVIN.

The eminent scientist, now in his eighty-first year, has just undergone an operation.—(Russell.)

CURIOUS DIVORCE MUDDLE.

Colonel Applies to House of Lords for Special Act of Parliament.

A special Act of Parliament is required by Colonel J. R. Malone, of Baronston, Westmeath, to unravel a curious knot in his domestic affairs. The Act he requires is one to make an English divorce valid in Ireland.

Shortly after the colonel and his first wife were separated by a decree nisi he married another lady, on whom a jointure of £500 a year on certain lands in Ireland is settled.

But in Ireland the colonel's divorce, given in England, is not recognised, and the only way to establish his rights, and those of his wife and children, to the Irish property is by altering the law of the land.

Counsel argued the case on his behalf before the House of Lords yesterday, and they are considering the question.

ACQUAINTANCE THROUGH PIGS.

Giving evidence in the Stanchenge "right-of-way" case in Mr. Justice Farwell's Court yesterday, a very old and very deaf man was asked if he knew a certain gentleman.

"Yes; I have bought pigs off him," he replied amid laughter.

"And do you know Mr.—?" "Yes; I have bought pigs off him too," (loud laughter.) The case was again adjourned.

CITY'S WELCOME TO KING OF SPAIN

The Court of Common Council yesterday decided to entertain the King of Spain on the occasion of his visit to London to a déjeuner at Guildhall, and to ask his Majesty to receive an address of welcome.

For this purpose a sum of £1,500 was voted.

MOTHER'S DESPAIR.

Perishes with Her Children in Burning Building.

STAG OF ILL-OMEN.

Mrs. Perkins, her eighteen-year-old daughter, and her twelve-year-old son perished in a terrible fire which destroyed the Black Lion Public-house, at Newland, High Wycombe, yesterday.

The outbreak occurred in the early hours of yesterday morning, and the house being of the old-fashioned timber type the whole place was involved in flames in a few minutes.

The three inmates made frantic efforts to escape. Mrs. Perkins, to whom the daughter was clinging in terror, was seen to come to the window and endeavour to open it by throwing herself against it.

Some neighbours then fetched a ladder and smashed the window. Just as they did so, however—indeed, at the moment a would-be rescuer had stretched out his hand to drag the affrighted woman out—there was a great burst of flame, the floor collapsed, and the two women fell to the floor beneath, where the dead bodies were afterwards found.

Meanwhile the son had been trying to escape from his bedroom at the back, but he, too, was overtaken by the same sad fate which had befallen his mother and sister.

One of the saddest features of the affair is the fact that Mr. Perkins, the tenant, was away in London looking for another house, and was unaware of his awful bereavement until he arrived at High Wycombe yesterday. His wife was about to give birth to a child.

The disaster has revived an old local superstition that whenever a stag visits Wycombe there will be a fatal fire. On the previous day the Berks and Bucks Staghounds met in the town.

"THEY OWN ME."

"Lesser Columbus" in the Witness-Box in a Concert Agency Dispute.

Mr. Laurence Cowen, who is well-known by the nom de plume of "Lesser Columbus," was the principal witness in an action at the Westminster County Court yesterday.

"Stage Production, Ltd.," of which company he is managing director, sought to recover from Mrs. May Scott, of Eccleston-square, £50, the balance of £100 agreed to be paid for the arranging of a debut concert for her daughter, known professionally as Miss Blanche Emond.

"They own me," said Mr. Cowen, to illustrate how ample were the firm's assets; the concert agency business had previously been described by Mr. Ernest Lipschutz, director of that branch of the company, as the largest in the world. Miss Scott said Mr. Cowen told her before the concert that she had a beautiful voice; afterwards he called it a nice voice. She was promised excellent Press notices, and was told that her voice was worth £500 a year, and that engagements would be obtained for her.

Mr. Cowen said he was an undischarged bankrupt, and had been threatened with a "showing-up" if this action was proceeded with. He never said anything about tours. Mrs. Scott told him she was the widow of an Indian General. The case was adjourned.

VIOLET LEAVES FOR CANCER.

Veterinary Surgeon's Remarkable Cure of a Fox Terrier.

Professor Woodroffe Hill, F.R.C.V.S., the well-known veterinary surgeon, writes to the Daily Mirror describing a case in which he cured a female fox-terrier of a tumour within three weeks by an infusion of violet leaves.

He operated on the dog by excision seven times between 1900 and 1903; then he tried the other treatment, and a highly malignant tumour entirely disappeared, leaving only a "thin, white condition of the skin resembling tissue paper." The dog has since died suddenly from a ruptured aneurism. "I have long been of opinion," says Mr. Hill, "that too much importance has been attached to the use of cold steel, and too little to medical botanical research."

SALE OF JACOBITE BOOKS.

Some 300 books on the Jacobites, the rebellions of 1715-45, and the Pretenders, at the sale of the library of the late John Scott at Sotheby's realised £280.

A copy of James VI., Basilikon Doron, brought £175.

To-day's sale will include 400 works on Mary Queen of Scots.

A fire, which up to last night had caused £10,000 damage, was raging at Swansea yesterday. Several stores were involved.

LONG LOST £1 NOTES.

Issued Eighty-four Years Ago, They Astonish Bank Cashier.

Eighty-four years ago the Bank of England contemplated issuing £1 notes, and four specimens were printed. Yesterday two of these four notes were brought to the Daily Mirror office.

Mystery surrounds these priceless relics. In 1821 considerable agitation arose as to the advisability of issuing a £1 note. In consequence the governors had a note designed, and four specimens were printed.

But they were never issued, and were put away in the archives of the bank.

Very soon afterwards two of the notes mysteriously disappeared. Every effort was made to trace them, but in vain.

Eighty years afterwards, in response to an advertisement in the "Daily Mail," a man walked into Mr. O'Hara's curio shop in Euston-road and offered the two notes for sale.

Mr. O'Hara looked at them dubiously. "They're curiosities," said the stranger. "Do you want to buy them?" Eventually the man accepted £5. 5d. for the notes.

The next day Mr. O'Hara sent an assistant to the bank to present the notes. The cashier looked at them in amazement.

"They're not in circulation," he objected.

They were sent in to one of the governors, and he recognised them as the long-lost notes. The man was questioned and detained, and Mr. O'Hara was sent for.

"We must keep these," declared the authorities. "No," he replied, "they're my property." Finally they were given back to him.

But he has never succeeded in discovering where these unique treasures lay for nearly one hundred years.

PRINCESS'S FLOATING HOME.

T.R.H. Visit the Cruiser Which Will Take Them to India.

The Prince and Princess of Wales travelled from London to Portsmouth yesterday, and inspected H.M.S. Renown, the battleship on which they will make their voyage to India.

Their Royal Highnesses were shown round the ship by Sir John Fisher, whose flagship the Renown formerly was. Later she took the Duke and Duchess of Connaught to India. Both the Prince and Princess expressed themselves satisfied with the accommodation which the Renown affords. What will be the royal apartments during the voyage are fairly roomy and very comfortably designed. Very little alteration is required in them.

One object of the visit was that the Princess might like down to the cabins she will occupy.

After leaving the Renown the Princess of Wales visited the cruiser Amphylast, the first turbine cruiser.

BARONESS ECKHARDSTEIN.

Judge Holds She Must Reside in Britain or Lose Her Income.

Unless his daughter, the Baroness von Eckhardstein, resided here at least 240 days a year in the United Kingdom, she should not, according to the will of the late Sir John Blundell Maple, be allowed to enjoy her income.

The only exception was in case of her being prevented by ill-health, or other good cause to be allowed by the executors.

In the Chancery Division yesterday the Baroness asked the Court to declare the clause was void because of its uncertainty. If it were held good, would a desire to winter abroad for her child's health be good cause?

Mr. Parker (for the trustees): The trustees are reasonable men, and will probably consent to anything.

Mr. Justice Joyce: The Baroness von Eckhardstein will have to reside in the United Kingdom or she will lose her income. It will not be sufficient to simply keep up an establishment. The trustees will allow for any good cause.

SCARED PASSENGERS.

Passengers in a tramcar in Manchester were greatly alarmed at the antics of a youth with a revolver, the trigger of which he repeatedly pulled. Finally it went off, and a bullet grazed the leg of Charles Legge.

The owner of the revolver explained to the magistrate yesterday that he had only just bought the weapon to send to South Africa, and did not know it was loaded. He was fined £5. for common assault.

OPERATION ON LORD KELVIN.

Lord Kelvin, the great scientist, who has been ailing for some considerable time, has undergone a serious operation at his private residence, 15, Eaton-place. He is progressing as well as can be expected.

PLAIN LANGUAGE TO A JUDGE.

Mr. Gill Says Mr. Justice Darling
Did Not Dispense Justice.

STRONG CRITICISM.

After taking ever so much pains to amuse and convulse the public during the recent theatrical case, Mr. Justice Darling was rewarded yesterday by being sharply criticised by a K.C. in open court.

Not only was it said that his Lordship had not succeeded in exercising his functions as a Judge properly, but the K.C. went so far as to allege that quotations from Molière, Sheridan, Dickens, etc., are, in a summing up, "de trop."

Mr. Gill was the K.C. who took the Judge to task, and he waxed a very indignant K.C. indeed as he proceeded with his bold enterprise.

In a voice that trembled with some emotion—at the back of the court it was whispered that the emotion was anger—Mr. Gill announced that he wished for a stay of execution in the Fraser-Edwards case, with a view to an appeal.

The indignant K.C. did not give the reasons for this request in tabular form. Indignation did not allow him to do, as he had done on the day before with the resemblance between "Henry V." and "Peter Pan"—but what he had to say as a table. But this method, as Mr. Gill had shown, is very convenient, and is adopted below:

MR. GILL'S REASONS.

1. The damages (£35,000) were excessive.
2. A non-admissible and prejudicial letter had been admitted by the Judge as evidence.
3. No direction had been given in the summing-up on the question of damages.
4. No comment had been made in the summing-up on evidence called for the defence.
5. No mention had been made in the summing-up of the non-admissible letter.
6. Matters having no bearing on the case had been introduced into the summing-up, viz., quotations from well-known authors.

"Mr. Edwards considers that he has not had justice in this case, and it is an opinion which I thoroughly share," was the concluding remark of Mr. Gill's very plain talk.

The Judge was not the least bit cross in return. He did not even look offended. He granted Mr. Gill's request to be allowed to go to the Appeal Court on condition that £22,000 was paid into court, and merely added that people are very often disappointed with verdicts—especially when the verdicts go against them.

CAPTAIN'S "GOLDEN DREAM."

Epsom Day, Auspiciously Begun, Ends in Loss and Disaster.

Six bottles of Pilsener beer and some sandwiches were purchased by Captain Harold Rocks before getting into his cab to drive to Epsom to see last year's Metropolitan Handicap run.

Returning from the races the cab collided with another, and Captain Rocks, who served in South Africa with Brabant's Horse, yesterday sued Mr. Owen Macklin, the cab-proprietor, for injuries incurred.

In evidence the captain said he had a bad day at the races. He began well with Golden Dream, but lost heavily on Mark Time.

He denied that he was drunk after the races, or that he had pulled at the reins, causing the accident.

The doctor who attended him at Epsom was of the opposite opinion as far as Captain Rocks's sobriety was concerned, and the cabman stoutly maintained that he had caused the accident by reaching through the trapdoor and pulling at the reins.

The case was adjourned.

DOCTORS DISAGREE IN THE LAW COURTS.

Marble Bust Plays a Leading Role in Slander Action With Doctor—Church-the Bullivant Divorce Drama. wardens Plaintiff and Defendant.

STRANGE LETTER.

A small marble bust played a prominent part in the hearing of the Bullivant divorce case yesterday.

Almost as soon as Mrs. Apthorp entered the witness-box she was confronted with this work of art, which, it is said, Dr. Bullivant wished to be buried with him in his coffin.

The witness eyed the bust critically, but apparently failed to discern any resemblance between the marble features and her own.

"I am not good at identifying likenesses," she observed.

Later on Dr. Bullivant was recalled, and denied that the bust had any resemblance to Mrs. Apthorp.

Mr. Bayford: I suggest that it is more like Mr. Marshall Hall. (Laughter.)

Mrs. Gibbs, formerly housekeeper to Dr. Apthorp, was the next witness. She denied that Dr. Bullivant and Mrs. Apthorp were together in the latter's room with the door locked. "It was wide open," she declared.

She objected to the detective Alston, because he used to drink.

Do you seriously suggest that you ever saw Alston the worse for drink?—Yes, unless he was acting. (Laughter.)

Dr. Apthorp said that his wife assisted himself and Dr. Bullivant during their partnership, receiving £20 a year for her services. He had been seriously troubled by the talk that was going on in Burgess Hill.

Anonymous Charges Made.

The witness was cross-examined by Mr. Marshall Hall. Do you make any charge against your wife?—No.

Have you ever made any charge against your wife?—I have not.

And having heard the evidence, do I understand that you still make no charge against your wife?—I have nothing to make a charge about.

The witness said he remembered receiving an anonymous letter in 1904 in these terms:

Dear Sir:—Why don't you watch your wife? She is carrying on again with Dr. Bullivant. She goes through Gibbs's backyard into Dr. Bullivant's backyard, and from there into the house by a back way. Heaps of people know this, and it is only right that you should know it. If it were my wife I would stop the wicked goings-on once and for all. Why don't the man go away after breaking up your home? They are so barefaced, and Gibbs helps her and him, too. If you have any doubt of this, make inquiries at the laundry.

Mrs. Bullivant was then recalled, and denied that she had ever confessed misconduct with Dr. Robinson. She had told her husband that she had gone out with him alone, and was very sorry.

That night her husband took her to the bedroom where there was a picture of "Christ Leaving the Precorium."

He took her by it, and said: "Can you look at that picture and say you have not sinned." She said she was not going to confess before a picture. At the time he behaved in a curious way. She was frightened of him. He would not be contradicted.

SHADOW OF CANCER.

Fear of the Disease Leads to a Moneyed
Man's Voluntary Death.

Terror of cancer led to the death of Mr. H. E. Davis, a single gentleman, of Hamilton-gardens, St. John's Wood, who shot himself with a revolver in Regent's Park.

"I am suffering from that terrible disease, necrosis of the jaw. . . . My mouth is in a terrible state. . . . I fear cancer is coming under my left shoulder. . . . There are sentences contained in a letter found together with a box of cartridges and a bottle of poison, on his body."

At the inquest at Marylebone yesterday it was stated that Mr. Davis was of a morbid temperament, extremely reticent, and of solitary habits. A verdict of Suicide whilst temporarily insane was returned.

THE INVENTION OF THE AGE.

At the Cannon-street Hotel yesterday afternoon a few privileged persons witnessed a demonstration of a new invention, "Sapon," which, when known, will lighten women's work all over the world, and bring joy to many a household.

As its name implies, "Sapon" is a soap, but a different soap to any seen before.

It is a powder composed only of oatmeal, which contains a large percentage of that most cleansing of substances, vegetable ammonia, and olive, which is sheep's oil. Perfectly soluble in either hot or cold water, "Sapon" will wash any article—however dirty, greasy, or stained—in no time.

CHURCHMAN'S ALLEGORY.

When a medical man can possibly spare the time he is a churchwarden.

Dr. Thomas Everard Russell Cruise and Dr. C. H. Auty, who were plaintiff and defendant respectively in a slander case heard in King's Bench Court V. yesterday, have both been vicars' wardens of St. Mary's, Willesden. Dr. Cruise was chosen by the vicar last year, in place of Dr. Auty, who had resigned, and in fact, it is alleged, had a great deal to do with the slanders complained of.

The longest and most peculiar of these alleged slanders was a statement made to the vicar of St. Mary's, the Rev. James Dixon. According to the vicar, who gave evidence, Dr. Auty, asked to explain what he had been saying about Dr. Cruise, replied:—

"I will state you a case. There was a certain doctor in this place. He and a married woman fell in love with one another. One day he came to her house drunk, and had to be helped up the front steps. The lady was so frightened that she told her husband all about it. There was a young servant girl from Baintree also. She came to the doctor to be treated. She told me all about it."

Speaking in Allegories.

"I understand you are speaking in allegories," the vicar remarked on hearing this, and Dr. Auty answered, "Yes, allegories." The vicar retorted: "Then I decline to answer allegories."

Dr. Auty, said the vicar, resigned his churchwardenship because he objected to a sermon preached by a curate.

The people's churchwarden, Mr. Pickworth, called as a witness, repeated to the Court another remarkable statement which he said was made to him by the ex-vicar's warden. It was to the effect that Dr. Cruise had acted improperly towards a lady patient.

Dr. Cruise, giving evidence, said: I swear that the statements are lies from Alpha to Omega.

Dr. Auty's defence is that he did not make the statements complained of, or, in the alternative, that they were spoken on a privileged occasion.

During the case, which was adjourned, it was stated that the two doctor-churchwardens had originally become estranged through a dispute over a patient.

WISDOM THROUGH SUFFERING

Stowaways Disgusted with Their Experience of Life at Sea.

Two labourers, Daniel Clark and John Handley, in February last stowed themselves away on board the steamship Columbian, just departing from the Albert Dock.

Three days out from port they were discovered, and soon made to regret that they had not stopped safely on land.

For the passage to Boston was a very rough one, and neither man was allowed to remain idle for a moment. It was a case of work, work, work, morning, noon, and night.

After this they were somewhat surprised to find that on the ship's return to England they were given into custody for being stowaways.

Taking into consideration their experience of "life on the ocean wave," Mr. Kemsley at Stratford yesterday allowed them to go, with the advice, "Don't do it again."

Clark and Handley (with one voice): We won't, sir.

BARRACK-ROOM BURGLARIES.

The barrack-rooms of various regiments in Aldershot have been the scenes of mysterious burglaries, the author of which has constantly succeeded in evading capture and getting away with soldiers' watches and money.

The other night a number of Royal Engineers awoke and found a man picking their pockets.

He got away, but on certain information the police arrested in London an ex-convict named William Currier, alias William Dunt.

He was remanded by the Aldershot magistrates yesterday.

LOVE AS MOTIVE FOR CRIME.

"My wife and six children had starved for three days, and I couldn't bear any longer to hear them ask in vain for food."

So said Theodore de Main, employed at 1s. a day at the Manor Park Post Office. He was committed for trial at Bow-street yesterday for stealing a 7s. postal order.

Mr. Justice Grantham, who arrives in London from Madeira to-morrow, is expected to resume his seat in court on Wednesday next.

VICTORY FOR "SPY."

Famous Caricaturist Upheld in His Dispute with a Conductor.

"It is a gross case," said Mr. Curtis Bennett at Westminster yesterday, when he fined Arthur Rance, an omnibus conductor, 40s., and £3 costs for assaulting Mr. Leslie Ward—"Spy," of "Vanity Fair"—under circumstances already published.

At yesterday's resumed hearing two ladies came forward to give evidence on behalf of the conductor, who they suggested acted courteously throughout.

Questioned as to the conductor's refusal to show his badge, one of them observed, "Conductors are not angels, and I cannot see why people should expect them to be."

An omnibus driver said he saw Mr. Ward clashing the conductor.

Mr. Curtis Bennett: Cuddling the conductor.

The driver spoke of Mr. Ward as "a man with a coat and long hair."

Mr. Ward's solicitor: But Mr. Ward has not got long hair. Was he carrying anything?—Yes, a cigar.

Lady's Imagination.

Mr. Curtis Bennett, in delivering his decision, said one of the ladies had unintentionally drawn upon her imagination.

What happened was this: Mr. Ward heard a lady ask two or three times for her change, and spoke to the conductor about it, who replied, "You have got her change!" Not content with that he then turned round to Mr. Ward and said, "You are drunk."

"That is the way Mr. Ward," added his Worship, "is treated by this highly-courteous, kindly conductor."

Finally he was pushed off the omnibus into the road, and his drawing-board and umbrella sent flying, though an omnibus driver, who may or may not have been there, said he had only "a cigar in his hand."

After being told he was first a thief and then a drunkard, they had people who came forward to say, "Oh, Mr. Ward lost his temper," as if that was such a strange thing under the circumstances to happen.

Mr. Bennett refused leave to appeal.

PASSION FOR CIGARS.

Non-smoker Who Was Fascinated by the Sight of a Good Havana.

A passion for cigars led to the downfall of Harold Boo, a watchmaker, who was sentenced to three months' imprisonment for theft by Plowden yesterday.

The prisoner had a contract for winding clocks of Mr. Edward Holt, of 65, Prince's-square, Bayswater, and it was noticed that after each of visits the contents of a cigar-box in the dinette were sadly diminished.

A detective saw De Boo take a bundle of cigars from the box and put them in his pocket.

For the defence, Mr. Freke Palmer said that the prisoner had an unblemished character for forty years. The one and only thing he could not resist was a cigar.

When he saw a cigar he felt that he must put it in his pocket, though he never smoked. Witnesses were called to say they would trust him with anything.

Mr. Plowden: But cigars.

Prisoner had sixty-five cigars in his possession when arrested, and servants and workmen had lost their situations owing to suspicion incurred through his thefts.

£430,000 RAILWAY SCHEME

Among the proposals embodied in the Great Western Railway Bill, considered by the House of Commons Committee yesterday, is a scheme to construct a new line four and a half miles in length from Faring Broadway to Shepherd's Bush, with an intermediate station at North Acton Halt, at the cost of £430,000.

The proposal is opposed by the L.C.C. on the ground that it will interfere with their Wormwood Scrubs estate.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE DECEIT.

Dying Old Lady Told She Was "Quite Well."

ANGRY RELATIVES.

It is high time something was done to control the vagaries of the Christian Scientist and Peculiar People and other faith-healers.

A very stern and circumstantial indictment of Christian Science methods is contained in a letter to the "Westminster Gazette," describing the last illness and death of an old lady friend of the writer.

Two months ago this lady came to visit her son in London. He is a Christian Scientist; she at that time was not. A fortnight ago her relatives were briefly informed by the son that she had been taken ill and "passed on."

Inquiries showed that she had had a severe attack of influenza, coupled with acute bronchitis, four or five weeks earlier. She had been allowed to go out and about as though nothing were the matter, being treated by Christian Science methods.

But the day before she died a doctor was called in—to prevent the necessity of an inquest, said the son in his letter announcing her death. This doctor found her sitting up before the fire trying to behave as if there was nothing the matter. He declared her to be dying, and in twelve hours she was dead.

Doctor Grossly Deceived.

The doctor was told nothing about the Christian Science treatment; he was deliberately deceived. He was given to suppose that the old lady had just been taken ill. One of her brothers was afterwards allowed to accompany his nephew to the doctor's house, on the strict understanding that the words "Christian Science" should not be used, and obtained only the doctor's assurance as to the actual cause of death, as stated in the death certificate.

But the relatives will not let the matter rest. They are convinced that the son would have done his best to save his mother had she been drowning or shut up in a burning house. But it is impossible to disprove his statement that she became a Christian Scientist before she died; though, if she did, his responsibility is none the less.

It should not be long, says the lady's bereaved friend, before an Act of Parliament is passed rendering all who practise healing, unless qualified practitioners, liable in case of death to criminal proceedings.

ATION'S VACCINATION BILL.

Greatly Increased Demands Made Upon the Public Purse.

The greatly increased cost of public vaccination is the subject of an exhaustive report published yesterday by a committee appointed by the President of the Local Government Board.

The increase is shown by the following figures:—1899, £472,665; 1900, £237,527; 1901, £233,512; 1902, £270,628.

"The returns," adds the Committee, "which have been put before us show that the total cost of vaccination and re-vaccination for the four years ended at Lady Day, 1899, was £231,819 0s. 8d., and the total cost for the four years ended at Lady Day, 1903, was £1,213,484 3s. 7d."

But the number of operations has also greatly increased. In the first period of four years the total number of vaccinations and re-vaccinations performed at the public expense was 1,370,897; in the second period the number rose to 3,197,192.

The causes of this additional expense is the alteration of the law regarding vaccination by the Act of 1898 and the large number of re-vaccinations at the time of small-pox epidemics.

The Committee believe that the fees for primary vaccination might be reduced without any diminution in efficiency.

QUEENS OF BEAUTY PHOTOGRAPHED.

Italian Belles at To-day's Great Carnival in Paris.

COMEDIAN SCENE PAINTER

The streets of Paris yesterday were an air of feverish activity, for the students, "queens of beauty," and all concerned were busy preparing for the great mid-Lenten carnival, Mi-Carême.

The historic festival is always a notable event for Parisians, but this year, thanks to a large subsidy given by the city council, and the international character given to it by the arrival of representative "queens of beauty" from Italy, it will be of greater importance than it has been within living memory.

The "queens of beauty" sent to Paris from Turin and Milan, whose photographs are reproduced on page 9, received an enthusiastic welcome upon their arrival in Paris. When their train steamed into the Gare de Lyon railway station an enormous crowd received them with enthusiastic cheers. The "queen of beauty" of Paris, Mlle. Jeanne Troupel, greeted them affectionately, and it was noticeable that the dresses and carriage of the three young women would have done credit to a fashionable raccourse meeting. The Italians then drove away to their headquarters to the strains of the Italian National Anthem.

VISIT OF THE PRESIDENT.

To-day these three queens with a number of others representing different districts of France will drive through the streets of Paris in their state cars, attended by a procession of grotesquely-dressed figures and amid showers of confetti and the blare of trumpets.

First, they will visit the President of the Republic, who has the privilege of embracing the queen of carnival, and will give the fair monarch a present. After that they go to the newspaper offices, and, finally, to the City Hall, where a reception is held in their honour.

With darkness comes dancing and revelry and the end of the ceremonial surrounding the working girl's brief reign over carnival.

PAINTED BY MR. DAN LENO.

An interesting relic of the late Mr. Dan Leno is being offered for sale by his widow. The comedian had a natural gift for scene painting, and he left the result of twelve years' work—twenty-five scenes, each measuring 22½ by 15½, and a number of mechanical effects for the stage.

As our photographs on page 8 show, these have been painted with considerable skill, and they embrace scenes in all parts of the world, from London to China, and from Egypt to America.

TRUCE IN SLATES.

Welsh Merchants Make Terms with the Owners of the French Quarries.

In consequence of the increasing competition of the French quarries, a combination of Welsh slate merchants have decided to take extraordinary measures to protect the home trade.

They have arrived at an arrangement with a similar combination of French merchants to keep up the present price of Welsh slate on condition that the Frenchmen add ten per cent. to theirs.

This Welsh industry has for some time past been in a very depressed condition owing partly to the slackness of the building trade and partly to the growing competition of the foreign producer.

During the four years ended December last, the total value of foreign slates imported into this country aggregated but little short of one and a half million, more than half of which came from France.

INTREPID VOYAGERS FLEECE.

A misfortune has befallen Messrs. Napper and Langford, the intrepid navigators, who sailed from Brighton in a small ketch in August to Cape Town.

They gave up their project to sail on to Western Australia and joined a syndicate formed to conduct a pearl-fishing expedition on the River Breede, 150 miles east of Cape Town.

Mr. Napper writes home to say that "the syndicate has done a flitter up country, taking our capital with them," and he and his friends are on their "beam-ends."

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE AGAIN

THE accounts we publish of a sad case in which an old lady's death was brought about by the methods of Christian Science is certain to be widely discussed, and very possibly move public opinion to and that these methods shall be closely investigated by the law.

The old lady, who was not a professed Christian Scientist herself, was suffering from influenza and bronchitis. Instead of calling in a doctor, her son and his friends encouraged her to try and imagine there was nothing the matter with her and to go about as usual in the cold weather, while they prayed daily for her recovery.

Naturally the poor creature grew worse, and finally died. Just before her death a doctor was asked to see her, but he could do nothing except give a certificate of death at the end had come. Since then the whole facts have come out, and naturally the friends of the family are indignant.

There is no doubt that Christian Science made many people happy, and even improved their health. As a system of religion it has nothing to say against it. But it is very certain that the Christian Science plan of treating serious ailments as if they did not is highly dangerous to life, and ought, in the interests of helpless sufferers like this old lady, to be not only discouraged, but expressly forbidden.

It is open to any man or woman to refuse medical aid for themselves, if they do not believe in its efficacy, but it is both inhuman and criminal to persuade anybody to do without it, and when such persuasion causes death it ought to be taken as usual course.

MACHINE-MADE PLAYS.

There have apparently not finished with the "gale" case yet. It will probably be brought before the Court of Appeal, and we shall have the whole performance over again. There certainly seems some ground for appeal.

Three thousand pounds for a musical comedy "idea"—it really came to no more than that—appear to sensible people as absurd. Yet, on the other hand, the jury Mr. Edwards's assurance that he has in his past paid vast sums to "authors" who have produced pieces for his theatres. They evidently took him at his word.

The surprising thing is that a theatrical manager, with the reputation of a good man of business, should pay anything more than a few hundred pounds for a musical comedy. He could find any number of undergraduates who, with a very little instruction, could turn out far better plays than we ever see nowadays at Daly's or Gaiety, and be glad of fifty pounds in discharge of all claims.

The "local colour" upon which so much is laid, does not matter a bit. If audiences will accept Cashmere scenery and costumes as those of Ceylon, they will swallow anything. Even those who happen to know better will quite rightly, "What does it matter?"

For original ideas, they are not wanted. He knows this better than Mr. Edwards. It is by the Judge (who, we hear, has already offered an offer to take Mr. Huntley Wright's play in the next Daly's production) whether he will recollect any new incident in any comedy he had ever produced, or whether he thought it over, and then triumphantly quoted one which everybody else knew taken straight out of a play by Mr. Edwards.

After all, made the best suggestion he asked why musical comedies were made out by machinery. Perhaps after Mr. Edwards will be inclined to take the idea up. He will not have to pay anything for it.

A THOUGHT FOR TO-DAY.

Every day at the beginning of a day is that it does not lose its moments.—John Ruskin.

THIS MORNING'S GOSSIP.

LADY CARLISLE, whose energy and eloquence have actually caused a district councillor to shake his fist at her, is a woman who feels deeply all she says. Indeed, the emotions of the platform have, for that reason, been sometimes forbidden her by her doctors, who dread their effect upon the heart. Fearlessness in opinion and action is a characteristic of Lady Carlisle's family. I remember that her son, the Hon. Hubert Howard, who died bravely at Omdurman, had a passion for doing daring things. He was at Balliol, Oxford, and did a great deal to make bicycling fashionable in the academic world.

He adopted once a rather desperate means of showing what could be done with a bicycle. In the inner Quad of Balliol, leading up to the Hall, is a long flight of stone steps. Somebody dared Mr. Howard to ride down them on his machine. Immediately he brought it into college (which in itself was a defiance of authority) and wheeled it to the top of the stairs. Then he started on a terrific descent, at lightning speed, to the bottom. He escaped, fortunately, with a few bad bruises, but the bicycle lay in pieces around him.

Mr. Barrie certainly knows how to choose original titles for his plays. "Alice Sit-by-the-Fire," his new comedy, to be produced on Wednesday, will be rather a mouthful for those who want to talk about it—and certainly it will be talked about. Nowadays everything Mr. Barrie touches seems to turn to gold. Yet once, when he was a poor little Scotch boy in a distant village, success must have seemed remote to him. He almost gained notoriety, at least, though, by a violent expression of political opinion at Edinburgh. Barrie was a student there, and Lord Rosebery came there to make a speech.

Mr. Barrie expressed his dislike of noble birth by throwing a clod of earth at Lord Rosebery. "He was a peer—that was enough for me," he says, and he adds, rather regretfully, "but my clod of earth missed him!" There is nobody alive with a keener sense of humour than Barrie. Once, while he was waiting for a train at Waterloo, Mr. Kipling, who was rushing to catch another, thought to take him unaware. He snatched some newspapers out of Barrie's hand, said "Lucky beggar! you've got some papers," and threw him a few pence. Most people would have hurried in pursuit. Barrie, characteristically Scotch, shouted out, "Here! that's all very well, but you haven't given me enough."

"Ha, ha! this man knows," was written by Whistler across an art criticism by Mr. Haldane MacFall, and now Mr. MacFall has repaid the compliment by writing a very charming and interesting little tribute to "the Master." He calls his booklet "Whistler: Butterfly, Wasp, Wit, Master of the Arts Enigma," and with its four reproductions of famous pictures it is worth a good deal more than the sixpence which the publisher (Foulis, of Leicester-square) charges for it. It was the "Glasgow Evening News" (not "Citizen"), by the way, which published the vivid sketch of Whistler to which I referred yesterday.

Mr. MacFall is a stepson of Mrs. Sarah Grand, and for a long time lived with the novelist. The last time I saw them they had a very pretty house on the outskirts of Tunbridge Wells. He used to be in the Army, like his father, but his constitution was not a strong one, and after seeing some active service he had to retire and take to painting and writing. His experiences as an officer in the West India Regiment gave him plenty of local colour for a "nigger" novel he brought out a few years ago, and he turned what he had learned of artists and literary folk to good account in a later book.

It is curious that the Rev. Benjamin Waugh, director of the National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, should be retiring at precisely the same moment as Mr. John Colman, who presides over the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. I only hope that both societies may secure equally enthusiastic leaders to replace these. When Mr. Waugh took up his work of punishing criminal parents and guardians his society had one small room in an insignificant street, only one inspector, and one matron. The first morning there were no cases to report, no children in the shelter, and no letters. There was also very little money.

Now, to contrast one picture with another, the society deals, roughly, with about 40,000 cases a year, employs about 170 inspectors, has 840 branches all over England, and commands an income of some £28,000! That is largely Mr. Waugh's doing. His offices now are more convenient than they were. If you go and see him at work he will show you, amongst other things, the society's "museum," the grimmiest museum, surely, in the world, for there are kept all the instruments of torture which have been taken from brutal parents during the last twenty years—all the iron bars and knotted whips and chains which bear witness to the misery of the children of the wicked.

Mr. Stephen Phillips, the poet who is returning to the stage, to play the Ghost in Mr. Martin Harvey's revival of "Hamlet," has played the part before, often enough, when he was an actor in Mr. F. R. Benson's Company. One night he played it so well that he was called before the curtain. Now a special call for the Ghost is, I am told, very rare, almost unheard of, in the records of the drama, so I am looking forward to Mr. Phillips's performance with the greatest interest.

People who persist in expecting poets to look like maniacs with hair unkempt are usually disappointed when they first set eyes upon Mr. Phillips. I heard of a man who attended a dress rehearsal of "Ulysses," and when Mr. Phillips, tall, short-haired, clean in a sporting tweed, was pointed out to him, he naively exclaimed, "That a poet! Why, he looks quite a gentleman." One thing poetical, however, there is about Mr. Phillips, and that is carelessness. He writes poetry on scraps of paper which he crams anyhow into his pockets and very often loses.

When the Americans are away from America they seem to believe almost anything they hear. So I judge at least from what Mr. Julius Chambers, one of their "smartest" journalists, has just been saying about Oxford. He went to Oxford for "copy," and was provided with it in abundance by the "captain of the University crews," who told him, it seems, that the younger men up there have to perform the most menial office in the university and act as hard-driven "fags" to them. With his own eyes, Mr. Chambers perceived "the youngest son of a marquis" making the bed and sweeping the floor in his host's rooms. His republican heart must have been wrung by this unutterable cruelty, and it would never have done to disabuse him by informing him that the marquis's son was merely a vulgar scout!

IN MY GARDEN.

MARCH 30.—There is no doubt that, after all, spring is coming early this year. Let us hope winter is really over and will not pounce down again from the north-east. Peach and cherry trees will soon be flowering, and frost would be a most unwelcome guest.

Now is the best time to sow grass seed. After sowing, black cotton should be stretched above the ground to keep birds away. This is very important. Daisies, dandelions, and other weeds should be dug out of old lawns at once. Moss must be raked out and grass seed sown over the bare patches. E. F. T.

WOULD THIS SATISFY THE OPPOSITION?

The Opposition complain so bitterly of Ministers being absent from the House of Commons when fiscal resolutions are discussed that we suggest Mr. Balfour should have vacant offices of himself and his principal colleagues put upon the Government Bench for their opponents to rail at. This would certainly be better than denouncing empty seats.

A MAN OF THE MOMENT.

The Sultan of Morocco.

THEY call him "the Foolish" in Morocco, and not without cause. In the eleven years he has been absolute ruler of his country his people say he has never done a wise action, and has done many which are the opposite. They even maintain that he has sold Morocco to France and they are prepared to welcome the Kaiser as their saviour.

It is his debts which have brought about all the trouble. The moment he came to the throne he started spending money like water. He has never had the faintest idea of its value.

Anything he could think of he ordered from Europe. Costly toys of a semi-scientific nature please him more than anything else. One of the toys which pleased him as much as anything was a camera, but that had to be studied with jewels. It cost him £2,000. He laid in a stock of printing paper valued at £400. Now he takes about one photograph a week. Gramophones and cinematographs he has in numbers. Magnificent musical-boxes are to be found in every corner of his palace. He has a stable full of bicycles and a garage full of motor-cars, and no road in his kingdom on which he can use them. He has a model train, which cost a lot of money, but which he has forgotten. These are only a few examples of the way in which he spends money.

And the money has had to be raised. No wonder his people say that he has sold his country.

A POEM YOU OUGHT TO KNOW

Shelley on Spring Flowers.

The snowdrop, and then the violet,
 Arose from the ground with warm rain wet;
 And their breath was mixed with fresh odour sent
 From the turf, like the voice and the instrument.

Then the pied wind-flowers and the tulip tall
 And narcissi, the fairest of them all,
 Who gaze on their eyes in the stream's recess
 Till they die of their own dear loveliness.

And the Naiad-like lily of the vale,
 Whom youth makes so fair and passion so pale,
 That the light of its tremulous bells is seen
 Through their pavilions of tender green.

And the hyacinth, purple, and white, and blue,
 Which flung from its bells a sweet peal anew
 Of music so delicate, soft, and intense,
 It was felt like an odour within the sense.

—From "The Sensitive Plant," Percy Bysshe Shelley, 1792-1822.

We learn from an American exchange that an Indiana genius proposes to utilise cats for the generation of electric current for lighting. His purpose is to round up the cats and drive them through a chute, so that they will pass under rotating brushes which will abstract the desired current. The invention might be further improved by the employment of mice.—Engineer.

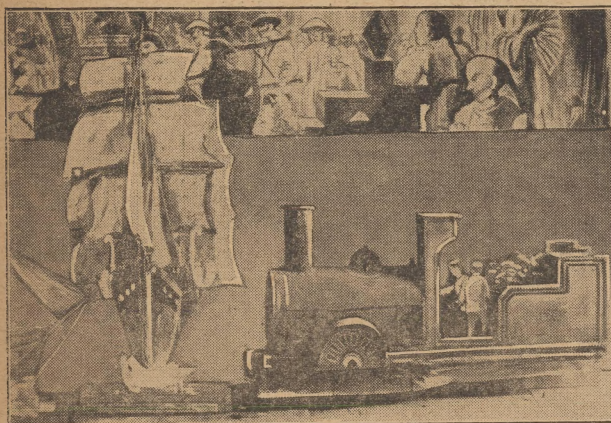

MIRROR CAMERAGRAPHS

PANORAMA BY THE LATE MR. DAN LENO.

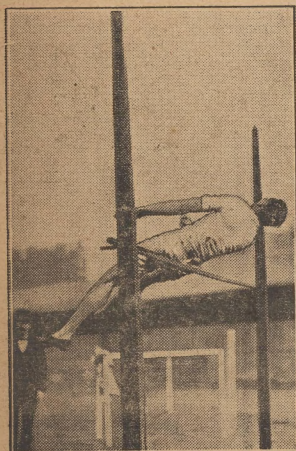

Mrs. Leno is now advertising for sale twenty-five scenes which the late "King's Jester" devoted twelve years to painting. This one represents a street scene in China, the smaller photograph being a portrait of the painter.

Stage models made by the late Dan Leno, which are to be sold with the painted scenes. Although never having had lessons in the art, he had a decided talent for scene-painting and the making of such stage properties.

It is almost inconceivable in a land still calling itself Christian, free, and just.

"SAINT PANCRATOFF."

Heroic Port Arthur Restaurant Keeper Who Cheered the Defenders On.

Among the heroes of Port Arthur who are gradually coming to light must be numbered the brave chef and restaurant proprietor, M. Pancratoff. He never lost heart all through the siege.

Neither the big shells, says Mr. Bennett Burleigh, the well-known war correspondent, nor the little shells spared the restaurant. The walls, nappery, and dishes went, but the food and the liquors appeared in undiminished quantities, becoming more appetising day by day. When the terrible 11-in. shells scattered his place to the winds, Pancratoff felt it was his duty to keep the restaurant going, and in the latter days he wrought amid and beneath the ruins, in the cellar.

Furthermore, when fighting was at its hottest, Pancratoff would sally with two of his menials, or a little donkey, loaded with kettles filled with hot soup, and hampers of bread and meat, together with the wondrous vodka. Right into the vortex of the fire he would serenely hold his way, there to cheer officers and men with good food and good liquors.

Nor did he of his good nature fail to minister to the sick and wounded. The latter were always his first care. No wonder they called him "Saint Pancratoff." He ought to be decorated by the Tsar.

PROMOTION BY MERIT.

Your leading article hits the right nail on the head. As constituted at present the Army offers no opening to the young manhood of the middle or upper middle classes—the classes rightly termed the backbone of the nation.

Would it not be practicable to raise a few battalions, well officered, and consisting of picked men drawn from the classes above mentioned? These men, in view of their superior education, and possession in a high degree of the qualities of spirit and initiative, would be worth higher pay than the class of linesmen who on Bank Holidays can be seen dancing in the streets to the strains of a mouth-organ.

"FAULT OR MISFORTUNE?"

I can safely say that in the past three or four years I have had persistent bad luck.

For many years I was engaged in a profitable business. Suddenly one day I was forced to give up (having broken a blood-vessel in the head) and was ill for nearly twelve months. The doctor, when I recovered, said I must not go back to my business.

Although I have been well ever since I have tried to get into another business without any success.

Can anyone call this otherwise than pure misfortune or bad luck? G. B. F.

ARMY RATIONS IN SOUTH AFRICA.

I agree absolutely with "Trooper in Bruce Hamilton's Division." I myself can trace a severe attack of dysentery to one of the "tins of rations" (stew) which was not fit for pigs. That happened at Lydenburg.

I think the most serious part of Mr. Plowden's conduct is that he, a magistrate, should thus encourage cruelty to animals.

SOMETHING ABOUT NERVES.

Medical science is continually being advanced by the introduction of new remedies, so that those which a few years ago were considered a great advance upon the old crude forms have in their turn been superseded by later discoveries. In the field of remedial agents for nerve disorders this advance has been particularly marked.

The remedies heretofore applied to this class of ailments have usually been merely stimulants which act as palliatives and give the nerves only temporary relief and more or less fictitious strength, but are powerless to effect a permanent improvement in the nervous system. With a better knowledge of nervous disorders, however, it is now known that something more than a mere stimulant or general tonic is needed for their treatment. A remedy is wanted which will not force the already exhausted nerves on to further unnatural efforts, but which will supply such nourishment as will enable them to regain their lost vigour in a natural manner.

The Remedy Found.

This is precisely what Bishop's Tonules do. They supply the elements of Nerve Nutrition in the simplest form for absorption and assimilation by the nerves. They restore the worn-out nerve tissue and foster its growth, and thus go to the root of Nervous Disorders. Bishop's Tonules are a combination of Nerve Nutrients and strength-giving elements of the greatest value in all disorders arising from a weakened and impaired nervous system.

Nervous Disorders.

Owing to the severe strain of both social and business duties, it is a matter of common knowledge that complaints of nervous origin are greatly on the increase. The most prominent of these are:—Impaired Mental and Nervous Vitality, Utter Weariness, Lassitude, Fatigue, General Debility, Depression, and Nervous Exhaustion. Inability to concentrate the attention, lack of Will Power and energy for either mental or physical exertion, and all Neurasthenic conditions. All these affections or symptoms indicate an impaired nervous system, the result of failing to give it proper rest and food which would enable it to repair in a natural way the waste of tissue.

Bishop's Tonules the Right Remedy.

In all forms of nervous ailments the advice most frequently given is that a holiday shall be taken so as to gain complete change of scene and rest, but this is frequently quite impracticable. Something is needed to enable the sufferer to pursue his daily profession or duties, and Bishop's Tonules will enable this to be done, supplying as they do those constituents of the nerve matter which are lacking in the above disorders. When the system is debilitated from any cause there is a want of power to assimilate enough nourishment to keep the nervous system in a healthy condition. Hence it is that nervous disorders are so difficult to prevent and cure. Extraordinary benefit will, however, be obtained from a course of Bishop's Tonules, as they not only rebuild the nerves, but improve the appetite and help digestion.

The Tendency of Nervous Complaints.

One of the features of Nervous Exhaustion is that the condition is not generally recognised in its earlier stages and treated at the first appearance of the early symptoms. At this stage a short course of Bishop's Tonules would supply the weakened nervous system with the necessary material for repairing the excessive waste, and renewed strength, vigour, and energy would follow. All nervous complaints have a tendency to become steadily worse, unless checked in their earlier stages. This continues until increasing weakness finally culminates in an attack of actual prostration, which prevents further work, and makes a long period of rest and medical treatment an imperative necessity. This nervous collapse can, however, be prevented by the timely use of Bishop's Tonules, which build up and restore the impoverished nerve tissues. In cases of chronic dyspepsia, and consequent defective nutrition, caused by worry and overwork, as well as in convalescence from influenza or wasting diseases, Bishop's Tonules are especially valuable.

Improvement Gradual, but Sure.

In all complaints affecting the nervous system improvement is necessarily gradual, as until the impaired functions are restored to activity they are unable to take up the nourishment absolutely needful to build up the system to a healthy condition. Bishop's Tonules are a valuable aid, and when used recovery, if gradual, is sure.

The Dose of Bishop's Tonules.

One Tonnule taken during each of the three principal meals daily will be found effective in average cases; but in more serious cases, and those of long standing, it is advisable to begin the treatment by taking Two Tonnules during each meal until marked improvement is apparent, after which One Tonnule with each meal will be enough to carry on the treatment satisfactorily. Bishop's Tonules should be taken systematically and the regular treatment continued until full nerve power and physical vigour are restored.

Where to Obtain Bishop's Tonules.

WRITE TO:DAY to Alfred Bishop, Ltd.; 48, Spelman-street, London, N.E., and enclose 1s. 1d. for trial val of Bishop's Tonules, sent post free within the U.K., and 2s. 10d. for those sent abroad. Also supplied by Chemists and Drug Stores at 1s. and 2s. 6d. We are pleased to answer inquiries, and all communications are regarded as confidential.

MODES FOR APRIL—SMART NEW FOOTGEAR AND SMALL VEILS.

SEASONABLE FASHIONS.

HAPPY PROSPECTS FOR LINEN WEAVERS.

Everything indicates that the coming season will be one in which linens will be pre-eminent. They are being sold in all the shops and in all colourings and qualities, fine and coarse, rough or smooth. Some of the soft linens, white firm, are remarkably soft and flexible. The dot and ring patterns are much in request in soft dull blues, greens, and pinks, embellished with interlacing rings on an ivory background.

Any number of heavy coarse linen laces are to be procured, and crochet is being used by many modistes for the trimming of linen costumes. The so-called little morning frock built with a short skirt and a blouse bodice is not trimmed at all. The most pronounced feature it demonstrates is that the long shoulder-line has disappeared, and that the sleeve is a trifle less full than it was.

Many of the newest linen skirts have yokes with box-pleats or stitched tucks falling from them, and skirts clear the ground and are fitted closely about the hips. Pleats of all kinds are very fashionable, and will continue to be so.

Fashionable Footgear.

There has not been a less commonplace season in footgear than the one promised for this summer for many a long year past. Black and sombre shoes and boots will be in the minority.

The choicest goatskins of Morocco have been tanned in beautiful shades of the fashionable colours and are made up into very attractive afternoon shoes for women. Patent leather and dull kid with stiff leather boots to match will also be used for dressy occasions.

Tan Russia calfskin and goatskin and white shoes of duck and buckskin will attract the honours for outdoor wear in the summer. Gun-metal-coloured calf is another new feature; an a very desirable one; and the tans, particularly in Russia leather, brown, and a bright amber shade, will be permitably smart.

Geranium and Garnet Colours.

For several years past red has not been so much employed for the construction of evening gowns as it is now. An unusual dinner-dress was worn recently composed of brilliant geranium chiffon velvet, trimmed with bunches of geraniums. It was made en Princesse, with the corsage square, filled in with finely-gauged folds of geranium-coloured tulle worn as a chemisette, and over the shoulders straps of the tulle caught here and there with bunches of geraniums. The full sleeves were also made of straps of the tulle finely gauged and finished by small bunches of the geraniums. For those to whom geranium seems too bright there is a new red called garnet that is splendid and yet subdued.

The latest spangle for trimming is pear-shaped. Pendant spangles attached by wire are quite new and very much in demand, and are very fashionable in Paris just now.

New Veils Worn Short.

A complete change must be recorded with respect to veils, which we jumped from an extreme of last year, when they were worn so long, to the shortest possible dimensions of the present moment. There is no question now of lace veils floating down at the back when so much of the trimming of the hat is arranged in a cache-peigne fashion, nor of long scarves twisted round the neck and falling to the feet, such as were worn by some modish women last year.

Much ingenuity is being displayed in the production of fresh kinds of net for the short veils now modish, novelty being obtained for these, both by varying the design of the gossamer itself and the decoration put upon it. This more often than not takes the form of some sort of spot, and it is really surprising to find what an infinite number of shapes anything so simple may be made to assume. Every size of spot is adopted, wrought either in chenille or velvet, although the tendency is not in favour of very large sizes, but rather for those below the medium down to the very smallest. Groups of different sizes of spots so as to form patterns and borders are much patronised.

All women who depend upon a veil to enhance their attractions will find delight in the new flesh-coloured tulle which are all but invisible, as they match the skin of the face, and the dots or spots of which play the same part as patches, which it is well known are not only becoming to the complexion but tend to brighten the appearance of the eyes.

The dress for the girl of fifteen shown on the left of the above picture is made of Admiral blue serge with trimmings of cream cloth striped with blue braid. The other dress is one of lavender and coru voile, showing the tiniest check, with an orange linen yoke and collar and silk matalasse braid trimmings.

THE CHOICE OF FURNITURE.

GOOD TASTE NEEDED TO INSURE SUCCESS.

There is ample choice in the furniture displayed in the shops, but it can be classified into two divisions, good and bad, so far as the purchaser is concerned. Some particular piece may be good in itself, but it must be appropriate to the place and purpose for which it is required, or it will be no longer beautiful.

No house should be overcrowded; this is the besetting sin of a great many housekeepers, who are, however, gradually learning that it is not desirable to have a great many useless pieces of furniture and ornaments in a room.

When furnishing a room the size of the furniture must be considered. Do not put heavy, large pieces into a small room. And do not choose queer, eccentric-looking pieces that will seem out of fashion in a couple of years. Furniture has to last a long time, so it is very important to buy what is good in shape and finish, so that it will continue to be ornamental as well as useful to the end of its career.

THE HEALTHFUL LIFE.

"How poor are they who have no patience!
What wound ever did heal, except by degrees?"

So Shakespeare wrote, with his usual wisdom. Why, indeed, be impatient over petty ills? Man or woman has no right to worry. Worry impairs health, wastes one's energies. A man who worries unduly over his condition, his wrongs, his disappointments, his surroundings, forgets his duties to himself, to his family, to society, and to the world. Try to look on the bright side. Take more rest, more pleasure in that which makes others happy. "Eat less, play more. Indulge in less fret and fume and more fruit and jam," says a well-known physician, with quaint sagacity. Healthful, simple diet, simple clothing, a sanitary dwelling place, air, sunlight, and exercise are all one needs to live the healthful life. Animal gratification is not living; the table should be as a place of true refreshment on the high road to a noble future. "One of the greatest difficulties I have is to get patients to live temperately and simply," says a great doctor. "If I succeed," he adds, "I feel certain that some kind of recuperative energy will drift into them. How often I hear men say, 'I can't restrict my diet, can't take a holiday,' and so on. They seem to think that the whole business of life will get out of gear if they take the rest that nature warns them is necessary." Work, by all means: "Work is worship," said Carlyle. But are there not times when "Rest and play" is as a song of thanksgiving and praise?

Look after the body's comfort. See that there is no clogging of the machinery. Look to it that every organ does its work as Nature intended it should do it. Keep the blood pure; assist the elimination of impurities. Wholesome food is the fuel of life, but the ashes must be kept out of the system. The liver, kidneys, and bowels must do their work properly. If the bowels become torpid, try to regulate them with exercise and proper food—fruits, green vegetables, cereals, wheat bread, fish, poultry, light soups, etc. Regular habit, cold baths, and brisk friction are very efficacious. In case the distressing tendency to constipation does not yield to these measures, the simple, harmless laxative, California Syrup of Figs, will take Nature's work in hand, so to speak, and not only cleanse and correct the sluggish organs, but strengthen them, tone them up, give them new functional activity, and so prevent the recurrence of disorder. Then, again, it is one of the pleasant remedies—pleasant to the taste and pleasant in its gentle, natural action—not a minor consideration when children are concerned. Be it said, California Syrup of Figs is good for old and young—for the strong man, the delicate mother, the growing girl, the athletic youth, the tender babe. It acts most beneficially without the slightest discomfort. That is why doctors recommend it, and why millions of bottles are sold annually. Now that purgatives are held to be an unnecessary strain upon the system, California Syrup of Figs becomes really essential to the healthful life.

Nature's Pleasant Laxative is a perfect remedy for Constipation, Indigestion, Biliousness, and all kindred ailments, pleasant to the taste, and prompt, gentle and thorough in action.

SOULS A'DRIFT.

tion of Paolo and Francesca is summed up in three words—"unwillingly, they loved." The speaker laughed, then put his arm through his companion's, and led Jack Hallows from the box. "You look quite serious," he went on. "Are you thinking of the old Italian tragedy? Be more pleased that I have found the ideal Francesca—as I most certainly have in Cecilia Melwyn. What a passionate heroine she will make, only we must find the right Paolo."

"Yes," said Jack Hallows. "You must find the Paolo who loved unwillingly."

"Then you won't come round and be introduced to Miss Melwyn? Well, you are a quaint chap. I tell you what, Jack, you're not likely to get the chance again. Bertie Clavering gazed at Jack Hallows in open-mouthed astonishment. He had just made known to his two friends, the manager would introduce him and his party to the heroine of the evening, for the curtain had fallen, for the last time, and Cecilia's triumph was an accomplished fact.

Jack Hallows shook his head and a look of intense determination crossed his handsome face.

"I must be off, old man," he said with some decision, "much as I should have liked to congratulate Miss Melwyn on her great success."

"But I wanted you to stay to supper," protested Bertie. "I've ordered supper at the Crown. Can't you persuade him?" Grant?

Grant Malcolm shook his head. "I never persuade people into anything," he said with a quiet smile. "Doubtless Jack has good reasons for deserting us."

Jack Hallows had good reasons—reasons he repeated to himself as he walked down the High-street. "What's the use," he asked with a touch of bitterness, "in speaking to a woman I must do my best to forget. It will be hard enough not to dream of her face to-night as it is; but it might have been harder still if I had once touched her hands; yes, it might have been almost impossible." He straightened his back and quickened his pace, walking with a firm, steady tread, breathing more freely when he had left Plymouth and its gaudy streets behind and gained the quiet peace of the deserted countryside.

Moonlight was bathing the fields in a flood of soft, warm light, and the breeze blew sweet and fresh from the sea, stars were out, calm and solitude reigned supreme.

"To meet that face at last," pondered Jack Hallows, "that pale, lovely face, and across the glare of the footlights! It seems as if some strange fate had sent me to the theatre to-night—and yet I almost regret having seen her, for it's one thing to be haunted by the remembrance of a picture and another by a living, breathing woman." He had gained the height of a small hill by now, a hill which commanded a view of the silver sea; but he gazed back regretfully at the lights of Plymouth town and thought of Cecilia.

"They are praying for me, I expect," he said to himself, "congratulating her—a whole crowd of them. But I was the first to applaud her, I'm glad of that; only I don't suppose she noticed."

Jack Hallows little guessed that Cecilia, standing up flushed and trembling, drinking deep of the cup of success, was thinking of him as he thought of her—wishing he had come round with his friends to congratulate and praise, so that she might have uttered the thanks which were in her heart.

Jack Hallows watched the lights of Plymouth for some time, then set his lips hard and walked on.

THE KING VISITS LIVERPOOL RACES. His Majesty's Loyal Greeting—Lancashire Wins the Cup—B. Dillon Succeeded. GRAND NATIONAL NOTES.

Liverpool, Thursday Night.—The visit of the King attracted an enormous gathering at Aintree today. His Majesty arrived half an hour before the first race, with Lord and Lady Derby and the Knowsley house party, in a stately procession. The carriages were, as usual, horsed with black and dark browns, with positions and horses, and escorted by a small troop of mounted constabulary.

Shine from the bluest of skies made the afternoon delightful. Flowers bedecked the approaches to the royal pavilion, which was festooned in crimson and red, and the pavilion for the greater part of the three hours, save for the luncheon interval. He did not smoke, as usual on such occasions, and looked so well, and the personal interest taken in the delightful music of the Volunteer band was evident occasionally by the King beating time.

Rounds of cheering greeted the arrival of the royal party, and much anxiety was felt to discover how His Majesty looked after his recent illness. The King, wearing a heavy brown overcoat, and brown bowler hat, sat in the pavilion for the greater part of the three hours, save for the luncheon interval. He did not smoke, as usual on such occasions, and looked so well, and the personal interest taken in the delightful music of the Volunteer band was evident occasionally by the King beating time.

Accident in an exercise gallop prevented the royal chase. This race for five-year-old jumpers was, as usual, fruitful in accidents. An Irish horse, Hack Watch, by the same name, fell from a jump, and was killed. His reputation from Ireland, and was backed by the Hibernian division with undoubted confidence. Three of the competitors tumbled about the first and second fences, and the race was abandoned. The favorite, Hack Watch, fell at the first fence, and the personal interest taken in the delightful music of the Volunteer band was evident occasionally by the King beating time.

The jockey, J. Walsh, jun., quickly remounted, and though by this time Holopole had reached the same spot, Hack Watch went on ahead in another few strides, and eventually won easily.

Lord Derby watched the races from his private stand. His colours were not carried in the United Kingdom, but in several other parts of the world, and he was not favoured by good luck.

Lord Londonderry's candidate, St. Florentine, caused great delay at the start for the race just mentioned, and so to speak, beat himself before the race. Golden colours were expected to win, but the horse, who had triumphed so far by horses in Mr. Arthur James's colours, and was well backed, but he failed. So did Sir John Thurstley's Standen, who was backed by the Hibernian division, who began with establishing a long lead, but dropped out beaten in the straight, leaving Mr. Singer's Lady Chancellor colt to score victory from Chester, whose luck, it may be said, was none of the best in the early stages, albeit he had forged to the front 200 yds. from home.

Some of the fatalities were desperately close. Lord Berkeley Page's favourite, the United Kingdom, only beat in a narrow margin, the pair shaking off the attention of the Rouken filly, who was very heavily backed by Captain Berkeley's division, but had no more luck than Rosbury at Lincoln.

Lord Roberts regarded himself with tea as the contest for the Spring Handicap. This race of 1,000 sows, brought out a very good field, and, despite his weight, United Jack headed the market. There was plenty of money on the market, and the horse, who had backed Ravilious to win a big stake. The fractionousness of the Pace Egger colt caused delay at the starting-gate, but Mr. Coventry managed to dispatch the horse in a fine line. Ravilious was slow in jumping off, and St. Emilian raced ahead from Lancashire, as if he could stay for ever, but he cracked, and a mile had been traversed, and ultimately finished last.

Pharisee took command from four furlongs from home, closely attended by the Pace Egger colt, Lancashire, and Imari, but in another furlong Lord Derby's colt, Wild Lad, Lancashire and United Jack headed the field, and the result of an exciting tussle was the victory of Lancashire from Wild Lad and Glenamoy.

The complaint of Maher against B. Dillon for foul racing was established, and the Steward suspended Dillon for the rest of the meeting. This set-down took immediate effect, and Inishree was ridden by Maher, and not by Dillon, as intended, in the Thursday Handicap. Inishree won comfortably and landed a nice stake for Lord Villiers, a young nobleman who attracted attention two years ago by winning £20,000 at Monte Carlo.

Lord Cadogan's Frusquinette, a general tip for the Molyneux Stakes, was not put in the race. The horse, who had been badly away, and well as Barnabi ran, the spoils were secured by Mr. Douglas Clarke's Sweet Mary. The latter was the best of the race, and the patron of Robinson's stable indulged in a regular plunge. Queen's Cliff disappointed her backers in the West Derby Stakes, and fell to Kama, well ridden in hustling style by Tiggs.

The scratching of Rose Wreath for the Grand National removes a possibly dangerous candidate, had all gone well, but as the list of probable starters shows there will be some twenty-seven runners. The following are the probable starters: 1. 12. His Majesty's Molyneux. 2. 13. His Majesty's Molyneux. 3. 14. His Majesty's Molyneux. 4. 15. His Majesty's Molyneux. 5. 16.
